Soldiers from Company F, 2nd Battalion, 60th Infantry Regiment take a break from training Wednesday morning, when heat category 2 was already in effect. According to the National Weather Service, temperatures are expected to reach the mid-90s today, and for the rest of the week .

IDs checked 100 percent

Chris Rasmussen
Leader Staff

A policy change requiring 100-percent identification checks on those entering Fort Jackson is prompting numerous questions and slowing the time it takes to get through the installation's gates.

Effective May 26, guards began checking the identification on every vehicle occupant, except children who have no ID, and physically inspecting them.

"We have had a lot of questions since we increased security on the gates," said Sgt 1st Class Barbara Dooley, Directorate of Emergency Services. "The guards are getting a myriad of questions regarding the changes and that is slowing the time it takes to get through the new process."

To speed up the process, everyone is asked to have their valid ID cards ready for security personnel to inspect upon entering the gate area. Drivers with a decal or visitor's pass are required to show a valid Department of Defense ID or driver's license. Passengers can show either of those two IDs or a state-issued identification card.

It will also help speed up the process, Dooley said, for drivers to hand passenger IDs to security personnel.

Vehicles without side windows or that have window tint have additional requirements.

"Any vehicle with window tint or that doesn't have side windows (such as vans), which restricts guards from viewing inside the vehicle, will be asked to lower windows or open sliding doors to allow the guard a visual inspection," said Master Sgt. Allen Taylor, Fort Jackson provost sergeant.

Drivers are also asked to take IDs out of holders before handing them to guards.

sure they are not altered in any way, stolen or borrowed from someone else, and that it is still valid," Dooley said. "People have to have them out of containers, which takes too much time for the guards to do."

Parents with valid IDs can vouch for their children at the discretion of security personnel.

"The policy is designed for the safety of families and the Fort Jackson community," Dooley said. "And we ask people to be patient when they go through the gates. We are making this a smooth process, but it takes the drivers' assistance to help speed the process."

Program helping more Soldiers return to BCT

Chris Rasmussen
Leader Staff

Soldiers injured during Basic Combat Training are returning to duty at a faster rate because of an improved rehabilitation program at the Fitness Training Company, 120th Adjutant General Battalion (Reception).

The Warrior Training and Rehabilitation Program, which got under way in January, is returning Soldiers to duty at an 80 percent to 85 percent rate compared to the previous 60 percent to 65 percent rate. The new program is a modification of the former Physical Training and Rehabilitation Program.

"We streamlined the program from three phases to two with the hope that Soldiers could return to training sooner," said Capt. Rich Moravec, Fitness Training Company commander. "In fact, since we implemented the Warrior Training and Rehabilitation Program, we have shaved two to four weeks off the average length of stay for Soldiers in training."

Now instead of only focusing on cardiovascular and resistance training exercises, the new program introduces Soldiers to the type of training they would be doing if they were still with their BCT unit. This is called the Standardized Physical Training program.

"By the time they are ready to go back to Basic Combat Training, the Soldiers have already been doing essentially the same physical training events they will conduct at BCT, so hopefully, there is less chance of being re-injured," Moravec said.

During the first phase of the new program, Soldiers spend time healing and doing low-impact cardiovascular exercises and resistance training. Once their injuries are healed they begin the second phase, which returns them to the type of physical training and other activities they perform in BCT, such as EST 2000, BCT classes, military movement drills and conditioning drills.

Pvt. Michelle Stokes, 20, of Jacksonville, Ark., said the new program has gotten her back into better shape than before she fractured her foot.

"At first I didn't want to be here,"

Realizing the importance of a risk management plan

Chris Rasmussen
Leader Staff

I learned a valuable lesson regarding risk management over Memorial Day weekend. Despite attending two safety briefings and actually writing a story concerning the 101 Critical Days of Summer, I found myself traveling on the highway extremely fatigued and on the verge of falling asleep at the wheel.

The story begins at the bottom of the Grand Canyon, where in the previous days I had completed a rim-to-rim-to-river traverse. With one day to hike out, drive to Phoenix and hop on a red-eye flight to Charlotte, I thought I would have no problem driving back to Columbia.

Completing a rim-to-rim-to-river hike of the Grand Canyon is no easy task. The trek is more than 40 miles and about 20,000 vertical feet — enough to make even the strongest hikers limp with sore muscles.

When I planned the trip with my brother, I didn't think my tight schedule would be a problem. I have done the hike before and suspected I would sleep soundly on the flight home. That should give me enough rest to drive back and be at work by 8 a.m.

Also, I got my pack weight down to under 10 pounds, a much less punishing and tiring load than the typical 50-pound backpack.

I couldn't have been more wrong. The passengers sitting next to me on the flight could have used two seats each and one was holding a crying infant. So suffice it to say, I didn't sleep a wink on the four-hour flight.

Once I arrived at the airport parking lot I hopped into my truck and headed to McDonalds for some black coffee and something for my stomach and body that was lacking about 5,000 calories from the hike.

Once I got onto the freeway to drive to work, I realized the coffee was having no effect and I began to become hypnotized by the road. My first inclination was to pull over and close my eyes for 20 to 30 minutes. With my clock reading 7 a.m., however, I had to be at work in the next hour and decided if I turned up my radio real loud it might help. It didn't.

With each passing mile, I felt more and more tired. The previous days of hiking and little sleep were taking their toll and I was beginning to hallucinate. I also began to think about a classmate in college who rolled his truck and died because he drove while fatigued.

I knew I was doing something dangerous that could impact other drivers as well, but I kept telling myself to continue and stick to my plan.

The problem was I didn't have a reasonable plan. Fortunately, I arrived in Columbia safely and relished that night's 10 hours of sleep.

I learned my lesson. Risk Management is more than picking a designated driver when partaking in adult beverages, wearing a seat belt or a helmet. It is devising a plan and schedule that allows enough time for adequate rest. A plan I will be devising for my next Grand Canyon adventure.

Army spouses targeted by Fortune 500

Mike A. Glasch
Leader Staff

In an effort to better recruit military spouses, more than two dozen representatives from corporate America received a two-day education on the life of a Soldier May 29-30.

The representatives were from the Army Spouses Employment Partnership — a program designed to support military spouses by helping them establish and maintain their own careers despite the constant moving associated with military life.

The ASEP representatives observed training at Victory Tower, the Bayonet Assault Course and pugil training and had the opportunity to try their hand at the Engagement Skills Trainer 2000.

“It gives me a better appreciation for what the Army families go through,” said Kris Robinson, ASEP Coordinator for Affiliated Computer Services, Inc. “I feel that I can relate a little bit better with the spouses I’m trying to recruit.”

All the companies involved in ASEP are Fortune 500 companies and have locations near all the military installations in the United States, with some of them having international locations as well.

One of those is Dell, Inc. Their ASEP coordinator Rafeal Garcia said the program not only benefits the spouse, but the Soldier as well.

“If we can be sure to be employing their spouses, they don’t have to worry about their home life. That gives them (Soldiers) one less thing to worry about and they can be focused on what they need to do to stay safe and secure out there on the battlefield,” he said.

ASEP was established in 2003, and was driven by an initiative begun by Gen. Eric Shinseki, then chief of staff of the Army, when a statement of support was signed between the Army and 13 corporations. Since then, the ASEP partnership has increased to 26 partners.

Garcia said his company benefits from hiring military spouses.

“We see a lot of diversity and different ways of thinking,” he said. “We have people who are taking care of our customers and they have different ways of thinking about how to help that customer, just look at it in a different way.”

The representatives also had a chance to talk with each other and share ideas on how to improve their own ASEP program.

“We’re a newer member to the ASEP program,” said Robinson. “We joined last October. So we’re in our infancy as far as the partnership goes. This was a great opportunity to talk with representatives from other companies that have been involved with the program and learn what we (Affiliated Computer Services, Inc.) can do better to recruit the military spouses out there.”

Army introduces new enlistment bonuses

U.S. Army Recruiting Command

FORT KNOX, Ky. — The U.S. Army Recruiting Command has introduced two new enlistment incentives.

A bonus of up to $51,864 is available to recruits signing up for a two-year enlistment in more than 45 active-Army military occupational specialties.

A maximum combined bonus for a three-year enlistment was also raised to $25,000 for MOSs. The previous maximum amount for a three-year enlistment was $10,000, or $20,000 for a limited number of priority MOSs.

Qualified recruits who enlist for two years plus training are eligible for an enlistment bonus of up to $15,000, which can be combined with the Montgomery GI Bill and Army College Fund of $36,864. These incentives are available to qualified recruits who enlist in one of more than 45 job specialties, including fire support specialist (13F), signal support systems specialist (25U), petroleum supply specialist (92F), pharmacy specialist (68Q) and health-care specialist (68W).

Payment of bonuses for which recruits qualify begin after completion of basic combat and advanced individual training.

she said. "But now I am glad I got to come here because I feel I am more prepared for Basic (Combat Training) than I was when I went to reception."

Stokes, who returns to BCT next week, was also able to improve her Physical Training test score by 106 points during her times at the Fitness Training Company.

"The great thing about this is they let you use the weight room whenever you want," she said. "If you have a broken arm you can still work on your legs and if you have a broken foot, you can work on your upper-body strength."

The Fitness Training Company is staffed full-time by a physical therapist and physical therapy assistant, in addition to a part-time occupational therapist and assistant from Moncrief Army Community Hospital. FTC also has two resistance training rooms.

"We have received incredible support from the post," said Moravec, also a licensed physical therapist. "Just this week we have been given $56,000 in new strength training equipment."

The new program, which was a collaborative effort among the Army Physical Fitness School, U.S. Army Accessions Command, MEDDAC and input from Moravec, is a pilot program the Army hopes to implement at all five Basic Combat Training installations. The program has also garnered attention with visits from the Australian Army, the U.S. Air Force and Fitness Training Company commanders from Fort Benning, Ga., and Fort Sill, Okla. "We are getting injured Soldiers in training back into the shape they need to be in to successfully return to Basic Combat Training," Moravec said.

Humvee 3-D simulator wins M&S award

Chris Rasmussen
Leader Staff

Fort Jackson’s Wheel Vehicle Mechanic School is transforming how it teaches Soldiers to maintain Humvees by using computer technology that makes each part of the vehicle “come alive.”

The training aid, known as NGRAIN, is an interactive 3-D simulator that allows instructors to show each of the vehicle’s parts up close without having to take an actual Humvee apart.

“We are not at a point where we can get all of the trucks out of the classroom,” said Chief Warrant Officer 5 Harvey Jackson, director of the 187th Ordnance Battalion Wheel Vehicle Mechanic School. “The generation we have today are the Xbox guys and they know how to operate and relate to a computer.

“This simulation can do everything a truck will do, without needing all of the trucks,” he said. “This saves money and allows us to train more Soldiers.”

Jackson, who spearheaded the Humvee simulation program, was awarded the Department of Defense Modeling and Simulation Award in the training category in May. This is the first time the award has been presented to an individual rather than a group. The idea for the 3-D simulation training aid began in 2006 when a gap in Humvee mechanic training was identified. Army mechanics were missing a small step in the work instruction for a common procedure on the Humvee geared hub spindle. As a result, there was an increased risk of the wheel detaching when driven, endangering Soldier safety and mission success.

Jackson reviewed the Humvee mechanics training curriculum and identified the need to augment the training with a way to more clearly show the problem. Aware of the success Fort Leonard Wood’s Maneuver Support Center (Missouri) was having using 3-D simulation in ground vehicle maintenance training, Jackson had an instructor use the NGRAIN software to create a 3-D animation of the procedure.

“As a result of Jackson’s efforts,” said Lt. Col Kerry MacIntyre, commander 187th Ordnance Battalion “commanders in the field saw an immediate reduction in the occurrence of a previously common problem with Humvees, as well as greater availability of the vehicle.” The program was integrated into the Humvee mechanic training course in March 2006, Jackson said. Within weeks of adding the 3-D simulations to the training course, Jackson said he began receiving calls from unit commanders asking, “What did you change? These mechanics are better prepared than in the past.”

Well-Being Corner

Third quarter WBAC; goodbye; hello

Tanya Brown
AFAP Coordinator

Fort Jackson will hold the third quarter fiscal year 2007 Well-Being Action Council 1:30-3 p.m., June 14 at the Post Conference Room on Jackson Boulevard. The purpose of this council is a quarterly update on the "Voice of Customer" from an individual, constituent and mission commander perspective. The council will discuss and resolve issues, concerns and recommendations submitted by the Fort Jackson community. The Fort Jackson community is invited to attend this council.

The WBAC consists of representatives from all directorates/organizations throughout Fort Jackson. The council is chaired by the garrison commander and the membership includes unit representatives from across Fort Jackson including the 157th Infantry Brigade, 165th Infantry Brigade, 171st Infantry Brigade, 193rd Infantry Brigade, U.S. Army Soldier Support Institute, U.S. Army Chaplain Center and School, Department of Defense Polygraph Institute, Moncrief Army Community Hospital, dental activity and constituent group representatives (active duty, Reserve, National Guard, veterans, retirees, family members and civilian employees).

During the WBAC, directorates/organizations representatives will discuss issues resolved at their level and issues requiring resources not within their capability. All issues resolved, issues pending resolution and those unattainable will be publicized in the Fort Jackson Leader and on the Fort Jackson Well Being Web site. Plan to attend and learn what is taking place in the community.

Finally, it is with a very heavy heart that I write this article and announce my departure as the Community FIRST/AFAP coordinator. I have been with Community FIRST/AFAP for 15 months, but must prepare for my family's upcoming permanent change of station move this summer.

I would like to thank the numerous community members that made my job a joy. I have met so many wonderful people and, hopefully, some who will remain friends. You know what they say, "It's a small Army." Our paths may cross again, be it here on Fort Jackson or another army installation. In the meantime, continue doing your part to making Fort Jackson a place you can be proud of.

I would like to introduce our new Community FIRST/AFAP coordinator, Christina Garza. Christina and her family have been at Fort Jackson since March 2006.

She has worked as a volunteer with Army Community Service and serves as a vice-mayor for Pierce Terrace 6. Christina will primarily be responsible for our Community FIRST/AFAP where she will continue to meet with all of you to ensure we are reaching all of our community members. Christina can be reached at 751-3425.

120th HHC provides gateway back into military life

Mike A. Glasch
Leader Staff

Of the six companies that form the 120th Adjutant General Battalion (Reception), the Headquarters and Headquarters Company has a unique role of inprocessing Soldiers into the Army. According to their commander, Capt. Richard Hack, it is only one of two companies in the Army dedicated to prior service members returning to uniform. They also process National Guard and Reserve Soldiers on split option preparing to attend their Advanced Individual Training schools.

“We are probably the only company on Fort Jackson that stays open for business 365 days a year,” Hack said. “We could get a Soldier in on Christmas Eve.”

With that unique role comes some unique situations not usually experienced by the other companies in the battalion.

Hack estimates about 2,000 Soldiers rotate through his company a year, with 50 to 100 there on any given day. The majority of the prior-service Soldiers are on orders to go to Germany. They do all their local processing, re-issue of uniforms and clearing of the overseas screening while at the company.

Hack says the goal is to have them in and out within four days. However, since prior-service military members are older than the average Initial Entry Soldier, they are more likely to have financial debts not usually experienced by IET Soldiers headed to Basic Combat Training, and some could end up staying as long as 60 days.

“Soldiers who leave the Army and quickly rejoin often have a lot of personal issues that we try to help them resolve,” Hack said. “We see a lot of them who have debt problems. That comes into play with security clearance issues and could delay when they are able to report to their unit.”

The longest a prior service member has had to stay at HHC before moving on was four months.

“A big flag goes up if they are here for more than a month, and a really big flag

Overnight arrivals to HHC, 120th Adjutant General Battalion (Reception), start their first full day back in the Army making sure their paperwork is in order.

goes up if they are here for 60 days,” Hack said. “Usually at that point we try to reclassify them into an MOS (military occupational specialty) that does not require a high security clearance.”

With recent changes to the maximum enlistment age, Hack said he’s seeing the average age of Soldiers passing through his company rise.

“We once had a grandmother in her 40s who had been a National Guard Soldier who decided to switch to active duty,” Hack recalled.

Sgt. Michael Alonso is one of those Soldiers who took advantage of the increased age requirement. The 46-year-old arrived at HHC May 25. After retiring from the Navy Reserve he decided to join the active Army. He is headed to Germany to work as an Army nurse. He said the decision to return to the military was not one he took lightly.

“I talked to everyone, listened to their opinions, and then I used those opinions to help me make my final decision,” Alonso said. “Considering the situation the world is in right now, it’s not a decision to be made on the spur of the moment.”

As the company’s prior service non-commissioned officer in charge, Staff Sgt. Tara Moore helps Soldiers with their paperwork and making sure they are financially stable.

She said working with prior-service Soldiers has some advantages, but also presents some challenges.

“They’ve been in the military so we don’t have to spend a lot of time explaining how things work,” she said. “But then, some think they know everything and know how to run the prior-service section. It does have its ups and downs.”

She added that it does keep her on her toes.

“Every day is a different day because I don’t know if I’m coming into 20 Soldiers who came in the night before or 50,” Moore said. “Every Soldier has a different issue. We even had one show up with their pet.”

When asked how she solved that particular problem, Moore just chuckled and said, “You don’t even want to know.”

But she did say she eventually found a place for the animal to be boarded.

DeCA pulls contact lens solutions

Kevin Robinson

Defense Commissary Agency

FORT LEE, Va. — Commissaries worldwide have been directed to remove from their shelves Complete MoisturePlus contact lens solutions manufactured by Advanced Medical Optics of Santa Ana, Calif.

The manufacturer announced the voluntary recall after an investigation by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention found a connection between the solution and a rare, but serious, eye infection, acanthamoeba keratitis, caused by a parasite. Anyone who wears soft contact lenses should stop using this solution.

This recall applies only to Complete MoisturePlus contact lens solutions. The following items are known to be in the DeCA stock assortment:

- UPC No. 8-27444-00001 Lens Care Solution Multi-Purpose
- UPC No. 8-27444-00004 Lens Care Moisture Plus Dual

Acanthamoeba keratitis may lead to vision loss with some patients requiring a corneal transplant. The infection primarily affects otherwise healthy people who wear contact lenses. Consumers should consult with their eye doctor for an appropriate alternative cleaning and disinfecting product and seek immediate treatment if they have symptoms of eye infection as early diagnosis is important for effective treatment.

The symptoms of acanthamoeba keratitis can be very similar to those of other more common eye infections and may include eye pain or redness, blurred vision, light sensitivity, sensation of something in the eye or excessive tearing but acanthamoeba is more difficult to treat.

Commissary patrons who have this product at home should return it to the store from which they purchased it for a full refund. Any unused portions of the product should be disposed of.

The FDA and CDC want to gather information related to acanthamoeba keratitis in contact lens users. Report adverse events related to these products to MedWatch, the FDA's voluntary reporting program on the Web at:

www.fda.gov/medwatch/report.htm by telephone at (800) 332-1088; fax: (800) 332-0178; or mail to: MedWatch, Food and Drug Administration, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD, 20852-9787.

Consumers who believe they might have the recalled product may call the company at (888) 899-9183.

Additional information about the acanthamoeba infection is available from the CDC Web site at www.cdc.gov/ncidod/dpd/parasites/acanthamoeba/index.htm

IMCOM mentoring program application period now open

Mary Tanzer

IMCOM Mentoring Program Manager

ARLINGTON, Va. (May 30, 2007) — U.S. Army Installation Management Command has announced that applications for the fiscal 2008 Centralized Mentoring Program will be accepted through June 11.

Employees who are GS-11 through GS-13, or equivalents, may apply to be matched with senior leaders for a one-year mentoring partnership. Applications will be accepted from personnel covered by the National Security Personnel System whose positions are equivalent to GS-11 through GS-13 positions.

Mentees complete a one-week shadow assignment, stretch assignments, eLearning courses and regular meetings with their mentors.

The Mentoring Program is designed to develop high-potential employees into well-rounded managers at the middle or senior level by preparing them to assume higher levels of responsibility. Headquarters IMCOM centrally funds the competitive program.

Senior leader volunteer mentors also are being solicited. A number of IMCOM senior leaders will be selected as mentors and matched with selected mentees. Mentors participating in the program report gaining from their mentor service. They are motivated to review their own goals and professional courses of action as they set the example for their mentees.

Applications require supervisor's approval, and garrison applicants require endorsement from the garrison commander or manager or the deputy garrison commander. Region applicants require an endorsement from region director or designee. Applicants at Headquarters IMCOM must obtain their supervisor's and division chief's approval.

Announcements and application forms are at <http://www.imcom.army.mil/site/hr/wfdhcmp.asp>.

Send applications by mail or e-mail to the IMCOM mentoring program manager, Mary Tanzer, by June 11. Contact Tanzer at 703-602-5487 or Defense Switched Network 332-5487, or e-mail Mary.Tanzer@hqda.army.mil for more information.

Applicants selected for the program will attend a two-day orientation in October.

Army helps prepare hurricane states for heavy season

Fred W. Baker III

Army News Service

WASHINGTON — The Army is helping out U.S. states and territories that are in the paths of potentially deadly hurricanes by providing equipment to help fill shortages identified by National Guard commanders there, a senior Army official said June 1.

The Army is either issuing or loaning 2,600 pieces of equipment to a handful of coastal states, Hawaii, Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, said Brig. Gen. David Halverson, director of operations, readiness and mobilization, for the deputy chief of staff for operations and plans. This announcement comes on the first official day of an Atlantic hurricane season that the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration is predicting will be "above normal" in its hurricane activity, according to the NOAA Web site. NOAA is predicting as many as five major hurricanes that could be Category 3 or above. Hurricane Katrina was a Category 5 hurricane.

"Just like any war fight, we are trying to be postured mentally and physically so we can have success," Halverson said. The equipment includes relief necessities, such as generators, trucks, High Mobility Multipurpose Wheeled Vehicles and radios. Some of the equipment will be permanently assigned to fill shortages at the states, Halverson said. Equipment on loan is temporarily assigned and positioned within the state and will be returned at the end of hurricane season, in November.

The Army started issuing the equipment in May and expects that all will be in place by mid-June, Halverson said. Right now, a little more than half of the equipment is in place, he said. Some equipment is in transit to Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Halverson said that Army officials asked National Guard commanders in March for equipment assessments. With the supplemental equipping, Halverson said, commanders reported back to senior Army leaders that they can manage storms up to Category 3.

Above Category 3, Halverson said, states would use Emergency Management Assistance Compacts in place that would allow governors to borrow equipment and personnel from surrounding states. Above Category 5, states may need federal help with personnel and equipment, Halverson said.

2nd Lt. Justin Cassidy, from the Pennsylvania Army National Guard, uses his forklift to carry bags of ice for survivors of Hurricane Katrina in New Orleans on Sept. 14, 2005. The Army is now giving equipment to the National Guard in preparation for this year's hurricane season.

Overall, lines of communication between state and federal agencies are now better equipped to manage disaster relief, and agencies are more focused on how to provide aid and less on establishing lines of control, Halverson said.

"It's just not about equipment. It's really about how you bring the whole interagency team together to be able to provide lifesaving capabilities and to be able to stop the suffering at the local area," he said.

In 2006, the states and territories asked the Army for 11,000 pieces of equipment, Halverson said. Last year it took until September to distribute all of the equipment.

"This year we're much better prepared than we were last year," he said.

The National Guard is the first military responder in the event of a hurricane, under the control of the state governors. At the request of the governor, the president can authorize use of federal forces to assist in disaster relief, Halverson said.

What is Morale, Welfare and Recreation?

Theresa O’Hagan

Morale, Welfare and Recreation

Army Morale, Welfare and Recreation exists because the U.S. Army is committed to the well being of the community of people who serve and stand ready to defend the nation.

Army MWR is a comprehensive network of support and leisure services designed to enhance the lives of Soldiers (active, Reserve and Guard), their families, civilian employees, military retirees and other eligible participants. More than 37,000 MWR employees worldwide strive to deliver the highest quality programs and services at each installation — from family, child and youth programs to recreation, sports, entertainment, travel and leisure activities.

Their mission is to serve the needs, interests and responsibilities of each person in the Army community for as long as they are associated with the Army, no matter where they are.

MWR contributes to the Army’s strength and readiness by offering services that reduce stress, build skills and self-confidence and foster strong esprit de corps. MWR services also help the Army attract and retain talented people.

About MWR and FMWRC

The U.S. Army Family and MWR Command was activated Oct. 24 and is a subordinate command to the Installation Management Command. Formerly known as the U.S. Army Community and Family Support Center, FMWRC has been the Army’s headquarters for Family and MWR programs since November 1984. Commanded by Brig. Gen. Belinda Pinckney, the FMWRC provides oversight for Army MWR operations worldwide.

MWR is about ...

Community — You play an important role in the community around you. MWR supports you with community-building activities, events and celebrations that bring people together. Community is socializing with friends and neighbors, fellowship and networking, all conveniently located.

Growth — You continually train to build your skills and stay sharp. In so many ways, MWR gives you that same edge in the rest of your life. You and your family have a world of choices for personal growth, self-enrichment, learning and discovery.

Peace of Mind — Your well-being is important to us. Through MWR, you have a “safety net” of professional resources that promote personal and family stability and give you peace of mind about what’s important in your life.

Renewal — Like everybody else, you need balance and time to recover from a hard day’s work. MWR has many ways for people to relax, recharge, renew and rejuvenate.

Self-Reliance — MWR cares about Army families. From financial counseling to preparedness for deployment or reunion, MWR support helps teach and encourage families to be self-reliant.

MWR Philosophy

Soldiers are entitled to the same quality of life as is afforded the society they are pledged to defend. Keeping an Army ready to fight and win takes more than hard work and training. Soldiers need a balance of work and play. The Family and MWR Command mission is to create and maintain “First Choice” MWR products and services for America’s Army, essential to a ready, self-reliant force.

Understanding prostate cancer; detecting it early

Q What is prostate cancer?

A The prostate is a male sex gland, about the size of a large walnut. It is located below the bladder and in front of the rectum. The prostate's main function is to make fluid for semen, a white substance that carries sperm. Prostate cancer occurs when a malignant tumor forms in the tissue of the prostate. In its early stage, prostate cancer needs the male hormone testosterone to grow and survive.

Q How common is prostate cancer among men in the United States?

A Prostate cancer is one of the most common types of cancer among American men. It is a slow-growing disease that mostly affects older men. In fact, more than 65 percent of all prostate cancers are found in men older than age 65. The disease rarely occurs in men younger than 40.

Q Can a man survive prostate cancer?

A Yes. Today, more men are surviving prostate cancer than ever before. In fact, the number of deaths from prostate cancer has been declining since the early 1990s. The disease can very likely be cured if found early.

Q What causes prostate cancer?

A Scientists don't know exactly what causes prostate cancer. They cannot explain why one man gets prostate cancer and another does not. However, they have been able to identify some risk factors that are associated with the disease, which are age and race. Men older than 40 are more likely have prostate cancer, and the disease is more common in black men. Family history also plays a role.

Q What are the symptoms of prostate cancer?

A If prostate cancer develops and is not treated, it can cause these symptoms: painful or burning urination, difficulty in having an erection, painful ejaculation, blood in urine or semen, pain or stiffness in the lower back, hips or upper thighs.

Talk health with dad

Moncrief Army Community Hospital

Father's Day is always the third Sunday in June, which falls on June 17 this year. This year, besides spending countless hours shopping for the perfect gift, take some time out and sit down with that special male in your life to discuss some of the measures he can take to have a healthier lifestyle.

Just think about it, if you were asked what a pink ribbon represented, you would immediately say "breast cancer awareness." So, what does a blue ribbon represent? A blue ribbon is associated with prostate cancer awareness.

The symbol is associated with "first place" ribbons and traditional preferences of "blue is for boys." If you were not quite sure, that confirms that maybe this Fathers Day you should set aside some time for your son, nephew, husband or father to discuss some of the top health concerns that affect men's health.

While the life-expectancy gap between men and women has shrunk to five years, the narrowest since 1946, it is no secret that men still need to pay more attention to their bodies. Why? Some reasons include:

- Men tend to smoke and drink more than women and generally have less healthy lifestyles.
- Men do not seek medical help as often as women.
- Men tend to join in fearless, risky, dangerous behaviors more than women.
- Men also largely define themselves by their work, which adds to stress and to being disconnected from their emotional side. This can add to problems in relationships, as well as in jobs and careers.

Women play an important role in the health care of their men through education and awareness. Often men get most of their health information from their wives, girlfriends and/or mothers.

The good news is that many of the major health risks that men face can be prevented and treated if they are diagnosed early.

For more information concerning men's health please log onto TRICARE.mil or visit your Primary Care Manager. You can also visit the 4women.gov/men Web site to get up-to-date information on men's health information.

The “Army of One” slogan has been replaced with “Army Strong,” but instilling teamwork is still a key component of transforming civilians into American Soldiers.

Soldiers learn how to work together to accomplish a task during the second week of Basic Combat Training at the Teamwork Development Course. Featuring six stations with two obstacles each, the course is designed to force Soldiers to work together to accomplish an assigned mission.

Groups of six Soldiers or more are given 10 minutes to plan how to conquer each obstacle, with no help from their drill sergeants.

“These obstacles actually simulate the types of problems they might encounter in Iraq, such as crossing a blown up bridge and carrying ammo and personnel across,” said Staff Sgt. Samuel Frantz, Teamwork Development Course noncommissioned officer in charge. It is very important for Initial Entry Training Soldiers to learn the concept of teamwork.”

Obstacles include the Cliffhanger, the Cable Crossing, the Double Culvert and Quicksand, all of which are challenging, Frantz said, and it is common for teams to fail.

“They are difficult to complete,” Frantz said. “When the Soldiers negotiate them we don’t expect them to complete them all. The leaders and team players really come out during this training.”

Things you cannot lose

Chaplain (Capt.) Aliner J. Harris
2nd Bn., 60th Inf. Reg.

When you worry too much about losing something, you’ve already lost it, for your worry prevents you from receiving any value out of whatever you’re so worried about losing.

Things do change, and what is here today may well be gone tomorrow. You can worry and fret over that reality, or you can joyfully and lovingly make the most of all you have right now.

The joy that you fully experience, you will not lose. The love that you live and give cannot be taken from your heart by any outside circumstance.

If you invest too heavily in the fleeting, superficial things in life, you’ll be setting yourself up for a shattering disappointment when those things are no longer with you.

Instead, learn to treasure those real, substantial, meaningful things that time and events cannot erase.

Get in the habit of living fully each day with meaning and purpose. You’ll find yourself worrying less about what you have to lose, and focusing more on what you have to use.

Express gratitude for all you have by making the very most of it, and you’ll always have plenty to be thankful for.

Open your heart. Don’t worry, the heart is like a flower — unless it is open it cannot release its fragrance into the world. The fragrance of the heart is made up of the qualities and virtues of our spirit.

Most of us have learned how to keep our heart closed in a world that would trample all over us if we let it.

Being open hearted today seems to require tremendous courage. It is a courage which comes only when we realize that no one can hurt us, no matter what they say or do.

They may hurt our body, but if we have realized we are spirit, nothing outside can touch us, if you do not worry too much.

Cases of the Week

Army and Air Force Exchange Service security contacted the Military Police about a Shoplifting incident.

A civilian was charged with Shoplifting after AAFES security personnel saw her remove a bottle of soda and a video game and exited the facility without rendering payment. Total cost of the recovered items was $34.

A Soldier reported a Larceny of Private Property after she discovered that someone removed her debit card from her vehicle and withdrew cash from her account. An investigation is continuing by MPI.

The MPs were notified of a suspected Driving Under the Influence at Gate 2 after a civilian drove his vehicle onto the installation at night without using headlights.

MPs stopped the vehicle and instructed the driver to turn his headlights on, at which time the MP detected an odor of an unknown alcoholic beverage emitting from the vehicle.

The suspect was given several field sobriety tests, which he failed. He was then transported to the Forest Acres Police Department, where he submitted a breath sample for the datamaster machine, revealing a blood alcohol content of .01 percent.

The civilian was returned to his vehicle and released on his own recognizance.

Provost Marshall Tip of the Week

Don’t Become a Victim of Crimes of Opportunity.

Remember to lock your valuables and personal items in the trunk of your vehicle when leaving your car unattended.

Several incidents have been reported of people having their purses, wallets, and small electronic devices stolen from vehicles that were left unlocked with these items in plain sight. These crimes of opportunity can be easily prevented if these items are not left in plain sight.

Boating and alcohol don't mix; can ruin summer fun

Sandra Barnes
Army Substance Abuse Program

The official beginning of summer is June 21, and summer means fun in the sun!

As summer arrives, more Americans will be heading to the waterways for fun and relief from the heat. More than 76 million people will enjoy boating this year and the Army Substance Abuse Program staff wants to ensure boaters are aware of the dangers associated with drinking alcohol and boating.

An estimated 50 percent of all accidents and fatalities that occur on the water are a result of alcohol. Alcohol and boating don't mix. Alcohol impairs judgment, balance and coordination — more than 50 percent of drownings result from boating incidents involving alcohol.

For the same reasons it is dangerous to operate an automobile while under the influence of alcohol, people should not operate a boat while drinking alcohol. Operating a boat is at least as complicated as driving a car and a boating accident can be just as dangerous as an automobile accident.

Yet many people who would never drive drunk think that it's safe to operate a boat after drinking. Drinking while on the water also heightens the risk of dehydration, especially when combined with the stresses of sun exposure, boat vibrations, engine noise and constant motion.

Alcohol impairs a boater's balance, vision, reaction time and decision-making skills. Intoxicated passengers are also at risk of falling overboard, which can result in hypothermia or drowning.

The South Carolina Department of Natural Resources encourages all boaters to use a designated driver in their boat, just like an automobile. It's extremely dangerous and against the law to operate a boat while under the influence of drugs or alcohol. On the water, the effects of alcohol or drugs are magnified

ASAP Calendar of Events

An Alcohol and Drug Abuse Prevention and Training Program will be held from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday and Tuesday at 3250 Sumter Ave. This two-day class is for anyone interested in learning more about alcohol and drug abuse and for those who have had an alcohol- or drug-related incident and the command feels could benefit from re-education.

A Unit Prevention Leader class will be held from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., June 20-22 at 3250 Sumter Ave. It is required training for newly assigned UPLs and includes training on drugs and alcohol, biochemical testing and substance abuse prevention. Seating is limited so get request forms in early. The uniform will be duty uniform.

The Fort Jackson ASAP Unit Prevention Leader of the Year Award is designed to recognize outstanding performance by the best Unit Prevention Leader on Fort Jackson. UPLs must qualify for the award by conducting a flawless urinalysis collection, passing urinalysis inspection, having a Standard Operating Procedure and providing four hours required annual training to Soldiers in their unit.

Editor's Note: The Army Substance Abuse Program provides prevention/education to the community on topics pertaining to alcohol and other drug usage. ASAP maintains a wide selection of pamphlets and videos that can be used to get a further understanding of the dynamics of substance abuse and use. ASAP staff is available to give presentations on alcohol and drug abuse.

For questions about classes offered or about substance abuse, call 751-5007.

by the elements of sun, wind and wave action. Alcohol also impairs coordination of arm and leg movements, slows response to emergency situations and makes it difficult for boat operators to scan the horizon. In South Carolina, any person involved in an accident that causes a death or serious injury faces an implied consent alcohol test and serious penalties with a maximum of 25 years imprisonment and up to a $25,000 fine.

- Keep yourself and your passengers safe on the water this summer by remembering the following guidelines:
- Don't drink alcohol and operate a boat.
 - Take along plenty of non-alcoholic beverages and food.
 - Take a boating safety class.
 - If you don't know how to swim, it's time to learn.
 - Wear life jackets; everyone should wear one, and children 12 and younger especially should wear them at

- all times.
- Know your boat's load limit and don't exceed it.
 - Learn "the rules of the road" and obey them.
 - File a float plan: it's as easy as telling someone where you're going and when you plan to return. If you run into trouble, DNR and other authorities will know where to begin to search.
 - Don't overdo boating fun.
- Remember, when operating a boat, you accept responsibility for the boat, for the safety of passengers, and for others enjoying the water. Remember, alcohol isn't the sport. Boating is the sport. Enjoy it safely. By staying sober, everyone on board will be safer.

Have you read your life insurance policy lately?

Capt. David Jones
Legal Assistance Attorney

Life insurance is the foundation of financial security for you and your family. Life insurance protects financial resources against the uncertainties of life so you can plan for the future.

The main reason for life insurance is to provide income replacement to beneficiaries if you die. The money dependents receive is an important financial resource that can help pay the mortgage, run the household and ensures family members aren't burdened with debt.

Choosing a life insurance product is an important decision, but it can be complicated. As with any major purchase or investment, it is important to understand needs and options that are available. Make sure you fully understand the policy being considered, its terms, limitations and exclusions before accepting any life insurance policy. Additionally, make sure you are comfortable with the company, agent and the product.

When purchasing a life insurance policy, read the application carefully and make sure you understand each and every question. Additionally, answer each and every question correctly and fully. You should read your insurance policy statements at least once a year.

Life insurance policies, like other insurance policies, are legal contracts. Some contracts are easier to read than others, but you should understand what kind of life insurance you own.

Most states require companies to give consumers a buyer's guide to help them understand life insurance terms. Ask your agent for a copy.

After purchasing an insurance policy, keep in mind there may be a "free-look" period — usually 10 days after receiving the policy — during which you can change your mind.

During this period, read over the policy carefully. If you decide you do not want the policy, the company will cancel the policy and provide an appropriate refund.

Life insurance policies require a beneficiary be named. Many people simply name a spouse and children and do not give the process much thought. Choosing a beneficiary and keeping that choice up to date is important. The wording of beneficiary designations is also very important.

An improperly named beneficiary can have drastic effects on how insurance benefits are distributed. You would not want to name your spouse simply by designating "husband" or "wife" because this could result in an ex-spouse receiving proceeds intended for others.

Additionally, naming specific children may mean that later-born children will be left out unless the beneficiary designation is changed.

It is also advisable to name a "contingent" or secondary beneficiary in the event that a primary beneficiary predeceases you. If you need to dispute a life insurance beneficiary, notify the insurance company of your challenge.

While the dispute is being decided, the insurance company pays the benefit to a trust held by a state court, and that court decides the legitimacy of any challenge.

It is generally not advisable to name minor children as beneficiaries, but rather to name a guardian for minor children and a trustee for insurance proceeds and other assets to be managed until they reach the age of majority. Likewise, if a child named as beneficiary under your policy predeceases you and you would want the proceeds to go to their children, this must be stated specifically.

If you currently own life insurance and are thinking about replacing an existing policy, you should take several steps. Never cancel an existing policy before receiving the new, replacing contract. First, you should demand a completed "Basic Disclosure Statement Regarding Replacement of Contracts of Life Insurance" for each of the policies considered for replacement.

If someone recommends the replacement because your needs have changed, consult with the insurance company you have the existing policy with to see whether the existing contract could be amended to suit your current needs. Finally, contact an independent life insurance or financial planning professional to get a second opinion.

It is vitally important to review life

The rain held off but the offensive downpour from the 2nd Battalion, 13th Infantry Regiment’s softball squad continued as it overpowered the Swampfoxes, needing just 40 minutes to claim a 12-2 “mercy rule” win Tuesday at Hilton Field.

After dropping a close decision last week to undefeated MEDDAC in which it failed to score in the last inning, 2-13 used home runs by Keith Sutton and Anthony Montalvo — and solid overall hitting — to get back in the win column.

“We have pretty good hitters and are pretty consistent on hitting the ball hard and down,” Sutton said. “We have two or three guys who have some pop in their bat.”

After a scoreless first inning, the Swampfoxes took a 2-0 lead in the second on RBI singles from Will Feagan and John Tannep.

That would be all the offense the team from “Camp McCrady” could muster. 2-13 defense was as instrumental as its potent offense, hustling and playing nearly error-free ball all afternoon.

The infantrymen (3-1) answered with five runs in their half of the inning, and would pour on more in the fourth as Sutton, who came up about a foot shy of a home run earlier, belted a two-out, two-run shot over the left field fence that opened the flood gates.

With the win, 2-13 remained within one game of MEDDAC in the Tuesday/Thursday League standings.

In other action, 1st Battalion, 13th Infantry Regiment notched its second win of the young season, beating 3rd Battalion, 60th Infantry Regiment (0-4), 8-6, and MEDDAC (4-0) stopped the Roughnecks (1-2), 14-4.
